

Decreasing heating consumption per dwelling in most countries (-0.9%/year for the EU average). New dwellings built in 2008 consume “in theory” (i.e. according to the standards) 40% less than in 1990 but this impact is limited due to the fact that dwellings built since 1990 only represent 20% of total stock in 2008

