

For several countries, the energy performance of clinker production is far from the world best practice (by about 30%). For some countries the apparent good performance may reflect the fact that only part of the consumption of non conventional fuels is accounted for (eg Italy)

Specific consumption per ton of clinker

